

WORLD SOCIAL WORK DAY 2008
FORDHAM UNIVERSITY GRADUATE SCHOOL OF SOCIAL SERVICE, NEW YORK

At Fordham University Graduate School of Social Service in New York City we held a special student luncheon to celebrate World Social Work Day.

Students from our Global Service specialization presented about recent international experiences in Ghana and the Dominican Republic.

Two students who are part of a funded Immigrant Project at Fordham spoke about their recent travel study trip to Ghana where they attended lectures at the University of Ghana and also volunteered at the Ghana Department of Social Welfare, Osu Children's Home, New Horizons School and the West African AIDS Foundation.

Another presentation involved students who as part of a Community Development class participated in a community service project with Haitian migrants in the Dominican Republic. These students like other students and social workers from around the world are really Making a World of Difference as we celebrate the 2nd Annual World Social Work Day.

Elaine Congress, DSW, LCSW
Professor and Associate Dean