

IFSW United Nations Commission

Hannah Burke

Hannah Burke is a student representative for the International Federation of Social Workers and current graduate student with Monmouth University's School of Social Work. She is pursuing a Master's degree with a concentration in Global and Community Practice. Her primary professional interests are policy work, community organizing and advocacy, with a focus on green social work through an eco-feminist lens. She enjoys collaborating in a team setting and is always eager to learn.