

Malena DiMaggio

Malena DiMaggio is a student representative for the International Federation of Social Workers and is a current advanced-standing graduate student with Monmouth University's School of Social Work. She obtained her bachelor's degree in Social Work from the University of Las Vegas, Nevada. She is pursuing a master's degree with a concentration in global and community practice. Her professional and research interests are in policy work, climate justice, children's rights and education, women's rights, and racial equity and inclusion.