The Japanese Federation of Social Workers (JFSW) conducted an interview survey of support agencies in Japan and overseas that are engaged in support for community residents with diverse cultural background (immigrants etc.). The aim of the survey was to study the linkage between various support organizations and comprehensive coordination of support, as well as to learn about the training of professionals who can take charge of such coordination. Based on the results of the survey, this international online symposium will be held on Multicultural Social Work, with particular focus on the Coordination of Comprehensive Support.
