

Julianna Larock

Julia Larock is a student representative for the International Federation of Social Workers and is a current MSW graduate student at Fordham University Lincoln Center's Graduate School of Social Services. She obtained her bachelor's degree in International Relations and Diplomacy from the University of Delaware as well as a certificate in Spanish. She is pursuing a master's degree in Social Work with a concentration in research and policy practice. She additionally studies Chinese and French, and her research and professional interests are in women's studies, children and education, mental health policy, and immigration and migration.