

Report about the celebration of the world social work day 21,2017 under the title ' social work and sustainable development'

The Moroccan association of social workers celebrated by this interested day in a small meeting by the members of the association and students of social work as well as social workers in some sectors who came in order to participate by their work experience.

At the beginning of the meeting, the President of the Moroccan Association of Social workers started his speech by congratulating all social workers inside and outside Morocco and praised their roles for more justice and dignified societies. And he stressed the importance support of the International Federation for social workers to Social workers in the Arab world and in Morocco. The workshop organized in the Center for Human Rights in Fes, the scientific city in Morocco, in the presence of the members of the Association's office in AMAS and the participation of students in social work at the Faculty of Fes Sais as well as the participation of a group of social workers who provided field experiences:

The experience of the social workers in the cell to protect of women and children victims of violence, which is an institution in the various courts of the Kingdom, provides legal assistance aimed at speeding up the determination of cases of violence, while ensuring free health and administrative services for victims. Besides, it's work carefully to not resort to activate the judicial ruler only as a last resort to it after the failure of all attempts of conciliation between the parties of the conflict.

Morocco engaged in the fight against the phenomenon of violence against women and children, since the nineties of the last century, the government put the first national strategy to address the phenomenon of violence against women in 2002, and then an executive in a planned 2004/2005 mode, Which contributed to the development of a gradual approach of intervention for all sectors involved in the cause of women in Morocco. And during the past two years, attention has been paid to the professional roles of social workers working with this group of women and children who are victims of violence.

The workshop also tackles the experience of the Social workers working in the largest project in Morocco in the Agency for Development and Rehabilitation of the City of Fez, which is concerned with the restoration of the historical monuments and the buildings that fall, which presented as a pioneering experiment in the field of social support of the population and craftsmen as well as the artisans and family. The tasks of the social workers in this project are based on the reception, orientation, followed, tracing, facilitation of administrative procedures and handling complaints and social mediation. This project will preserve the social fabric of the oldest city in Morocco dating back to twelve centuries.
